

Join The Canadian Research Institute of Spirituality and Healing for a Public Meeting:

Making Integrative Healthcare a Reality

Date: Thursday March 27, 2008 7:00 – 9:00 pm (on time)
Location: Unitarian Church of Vancouver, 949 – 49th Ave. West

Integrative Healthcare in Vancouver: What are the ingredients to succeed?

The Canadian Research Institute of Spirituality and Healing (CRISH) would like to provide a forum for dialogues and a platform for planning an integrative healthcare service. We invite you to come join us to create a vision for compassionate care, and more importantly, to develop a model of integrative care that is community based and that is sustainable. Your feedback is essential.

Our feature presentation to inspire this dialogue is:

Beyond Resistance: Finding the Healing Power of Gratitude

By Gabor Maté, MD

Physician, public speaker and the author of three bestselling books, published internationally.

Book display: Dr. Maté's most recent book, In the Realm of Hungry Ghosts: Close Encounters with Addiction, was published in February, 2008. Copies of Dr. Maté's books will be available for purchase and signing after the talk.

Seating is limited. Please RSVP via info@crish.org. Questions about this event? Looking for more information about CRISH and its work? Please contact:

Dr. Lyren Chiu, President

Canadian Research Institute of Spirituality and Healing

Tel: 604.222.0038 Fax: 604.288.0038 E-mail: info@crish.org

Website: www.crish.org

The Canadian Research Institute of Spirituality and Healing (CRISH) is a not-for-profit professional organization devoted to promoting multidisciplinary research and education in spirituality, culture, healing, and health care and dedicated to creating a new vision of integrative compassionate health care.